Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Sunday 27 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Fine, dry, bright for most. Some drizzle in far north.

Today:
Fine, dry, bright day for the vast majority and feeling warmer than yesterday, especially in the east. Across far north and northwest quite cloudy with some drizzle. Winds generally light.

Tonight:
Dry with prolonged clear spells for most, though lower cloud and some patchy rain occasionally pushing across the far north and northwest. Winds light.

Monday:
Dry and sunny for most. However isolated, possibly sharp, afternoon showers inland northwest. Also early drizzle in coastal north, northwest, soon becoming confined to Western and Northern Isles from mid-morning.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
West mainly dry and sunny. However low cloud and patchy light rain occasionally feeding across far north, also the east and perhaps extending westwards through the Central Belt at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.